A LETTER FROM

MY LITTLE MARGIE TO YOU!

HEY, FELLAS!

I've just begun to "live" I discovered the difference between the other day and the really words don't I just happened to be in the flatter market and I heard somebody say Long delivering a real shoving version of "Lord the My Heart Back, I Gotta Love You". Now somebody say not have much of a voice but he said the good-looking right where they belong, so I thought to

Dad was home when I arrived, all breathless, impatient to explain it again. Dad isn't exactly happy, but he's not round at the moment either. When I started the record that got up with the same expression he always wears when he's going for the books. But I was really gone over Daddy boy and I didn't say much anymore! Your character really impressed! He seemed to love and he seemed to love. Dad says he missed you but you know how the old folks were

I called some of the gang this night and they were for him in a big way too. We formed a something called the Plan Club and went out the next day and brought up all the records he'd put. Best Club. Especially for me. "I'm a With Me, Baby. The Too Cold To Sit This One Out". Any way, the Plan Club got so good and we started whooping it up for him old somebody! And then it turned out that we were the first to see him ever had! I wrote to him and he wrote right back. I didn't expect him to be so friendly but I wanted him to come for a special appearance and he wrote back that he'd love to!

We were all excited for the grand day. Then the train got in and off dropped the whole character who needed glasses and shook hands with a telephone booth before I could get a little and started myself. We had a hard record and he crossed a little but he said we for given his returning technique we had to carry him back to his seat. It was real closed!

Well, he went away and we gathered up a little. But Dad got in some of the records that night, he seemed real good! So now we're really fans. Sometimes it's nice to be old-fashioned.

Love from, Margie
